You rock Tony! Love having the ability to do my own repairs and maintenance.

one of the biggest questions I had was how to remove the bluetooth antenna - but you didn't show it. All of us have glued/siliconed antennas so removal isn't going to be easy at all - I give it a 50/50 chance that my antenna will survive my 'surgery'

So adv 2 owners are going to automatically get sent necessary replacement parts. Or do we got to email you and request for it

My bluetooth antenna broke very easily. I didn't really get a clear idea of removing this in the video. In addition, removing the thermal pad was difficult as well because mine was essentially brittle. I managed to get around 80% removed with using a paint scraper.

1.) Because the bluetooth antennae is broken will this affect operation of the board at all, or connecting to apps like vesc or floaty?

2.) Whats the explanation of replacing the bottom portion of ESC vs both parts? ...

When will Adv 1 owners get to upgrade the hardware at cost to Adv 2? I was late to Adv 1 but bought as an upgrade was going to be offered at cost + P&amp;P.

If you are following these directions note that the antenna has black glue holding it on mine. Also note: power button cable is accidentally unplugged at the button.

My battery from the new ADV2 (order in okt. 2025) is defective - one cell is dead. Unfortunately, I'm not getting any response from Tony. Now the website has also been taken down. I'm a bit at a loss because I've already sent several emails and screenshots to Tony. What can I do? Does anyone know if he will respond or send new parts like a battery, BMS, or antenna? Thank you für

I can not imagine getting this kind of in depth information from anyone but you Tony. I have 3 installs w your XRV kits, and couldn't be happier. My hope is that you will continue to offer more options, and different BMS options, so that we can change our battery output using the same controller. (Meat Pack comes to mind) Awesome job again.
